Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Katrina Lyon on 11 February 2005.

The application has been amended as follows:

9. (Amended) A computer-implemented process for viewing and controlling an animation sequence comprising the process actions of:
 - displaying an event list containing one or more animation events in an ordered sequence; and
 - displaying an event timeline graphically depicting the timing of the animation event which can be displayed for each animation event displaying a graphically-depicted universal timeline that provides a time corresponding to all animation event times in ordered sequence, wherein each said animation event in said event list is depicted by an event timeline bar which indicates the animation event's start time, stop time, and duration, each event timeline bar being correlated to said universal timeline; and wherein the event timeline bars are horizontally depicted and wherein the start time of an event bar is numerically indicated in a pop up window when the left edge of the event bar is selected with an input device; and wherein the end time of an event is numerically indicated in a pop up window when the right edge of the event bar is selected with an input device; and wherein the duration of an event is numerically indicated in a pop-up window when the center of the event bar is selected with an input device.

5. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: displaying the universal timeline bars depicting the universal start time of an event in a pop up window when the left edge of the bar is selected, the displaying the universal timeline bars depicting the universal end time of an event in a pop up window when the right edge of the bar is selected, and displaying the duration of the event numerically in a pop up window when the center of the event bar is selected is not taught in the prior art and would not have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention in view of the prior art of record.
